

Milbank PowerGen™ dealer network grows with Atwood Electric

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (Dec. 5, 2011) – Milbank PowerGen™, the renewable energy division of Milbank Manufacturing Company, is pleased to announce the addition of Atwood Electric to its growing network of authorized dealers.

Located in Sigourney, Iowa, Atwood Electric is a full-service electrical contracting firm that operates in the agricultural, industrial, commercial and residential sectors. As an authorized Milbank PowerGen™ dealer, Atwood Electric will develop and install renewable energy projects throughout the state of Iowa.

“We’re excited to provide our customers with the opportunity to offset their energy consumption and control their future power costs,” said Duane Atwood, owner and founder of Atwood Electric. “Iowa is located in an excellent region for wind and other renewable power sources.”

Wind power accounted for almost 20 percent of the state’s electricity generation in the first quarter of 2011.¹

“Atwood Electric has extensive expertise in the installation of electrical projects and providing effective solutions to its customer base,” said Chris Buelow, general manager of Milbank’s PowerGen™ division. “We’re glad to welcome Atwood to the PowerGen™ team as we continue to expand and elevate our dealer network on a national level.”
